"GEOGRAPHY, ENVIRONMENT
AND TERRITORIAL PLANNING

For an inclusive and sustainable territorial governance and management.

MAY 30 - JUNE 1, 2023

FACULTAD DE
GEOGRAFÍA
Universidad de La Habana

Diseño: Carlos Acosta

The Faculty of Geography of the University of Havana and the co-sponsoring institutions, within the framework of the International Scientific Convention, convene the Symposium on "Geography, Environment and Territorial Planning" under the slogan "For an inclusive and sustainable territorial governance and management"

The event will be held from May 30 to June 1, 2023, at the University of Havana.

General objective of the event:

To contribute to the analysis and dissemination of research being carried out in the country and in other regions of the planet, fundamentally in Latin America and the Caribbean, in the thematic areas of this symposium, as well as to the promotion of scientific debate on the vital problems that currently exist in the geographic space and its transformation in the face of the advance of the globalization process and the dominant neoliberal orientation, which demand a geographic education that contributes to the construction of a new culture of planning, governance and inclusive and participatory territorial management and the valuation of accumulated experiences in overcoming the pressing problems arising from climate change.
